FUTUREBUS+ SYMPOSIUM

'Futurebus+' is a scalable, high-performance, general purpose, backplane bus which has been developed by a committee of the IEEE (896.n). It has been designed from the outset as an entirely open system, having as goal the ability to be capable of the highest possible transfer rate which current and future technology will allow. Its numerous features, such as cache-coherency and fault-tolerance make it suitable for use in a very wide range of applications, including high-performance work-stations, telecommunications, process control and real-time.

Potential users and suppliers of Futurebus+ equipment are invited to participate in a symposium on the standard and its possible applications in High Energy Physics and related fields. The meeting will have two goals: firstly, to inform the community of HEP physics and engineering users about the standard, and secondly to exchange information between users and potential suppliers concerning possible applications and plans for products.

To participate, please apply before Tuesday 22nd October (space is limited) to Mrs Anne Perrelle / ECP Division / 2406 / perrelle@cernvm.cern.ch.
