ASTRONAUT
SCHWEICKART

Wednesday 4 June 1969 at 8.30 p.m.

TEE FLIGHT 0? ÂPOLL0 9 AND THE FUTURE OF SPACE EXPLORATION

One of the most disturbing photographs taken in space shows a mysterious cylinder, with one side "brilliantly lit up, apparently floating 160 kilometres above the earth, which looks as though it is covered with whipped cream. This object looks like a dustbin filled to the "brim with a miscellaneous collection of ironmongery, surmounted by a large single eye.....

This is the first stage of a Saturn rocket ready to release "Spider", the lunar exploration module, during the MSA Âpollo 9 mission.

This important step towards landing a man on the moon was made between 3 s,nd 13 March 1969- Luring these ten days in space, three American astronauts (McLIYTTI, SCOTT and SCHWEICKART) carried out a whole series of manoeuvres ; going out into space ; taking photographs ; mooring alongside, transferring personnel and separating from the parent craft, etc....

At the invitation of the PIO and in co-operation with the Staff Association, Russell L. SCHWEICKART, the only civilian in the Apollo 9 crew, has agreed to come to CERN to speak about his experience as an astronaut and the future of space exploration.

Russell L. SCHWEICKART was born on.25 October 1935 in New Jersey of parents who came from Lambach in Alsace. He studied in the technical field (aero-nautics and astronautics} at the MIT, Cambridge, Massachusetts, where he later did. research work. He is an aircraft pilot with 2,400 hours of flying time. Els hobbies are all on the. technical side : astronomy, photography and elec-tronics. The astronaut Russell L. SCHWEICKART is married to Clare Whitfield. They have five children, including two twins.

Le film "Apollo 9" apporté par l'astronaute Russell SCHWEICKART sera probablement * encore projeté quatre fois dans l'amphithéâtre dans ses deux versions (anglais et français) à chacune des séances suivantes :

+ jeudi 5 juin 1969 à 18.00
 et 20.00

+ vendredi 6 juin 1969 à 12 .00
 et 13.00
